

Protecting the Value of Your Belongings

Most moving companies do their very best to ensure the safe transport of your belongings during a move. However, accidents can and do happen. Understanding your options and their implications is a critical part of protecting the value of your belongings during a move.

Movers' Legal Liability vs. Relocation Insurance

Movers offer legal liability coverage – typically at just sixty cents per pound, per article. This represents your mover's minimum legal obligation to compensate you for damages to your property.

Genuine relocation insurance is much more comprehensive. Our policies provide options to protect the full value of your belongings while they're being handled and/or stored by your mover.

Consider the following scenario:

Hypothetical Claim for a 100 lb. item valued at $10,000.

Type of Coverage	Average Cost of Coverage	Estimated Claim Payout
Movers' Standard Coverage ($0.60/lb)	$0	$60
RelocationInsurance.com (All Risk)	$12.20*	$10,000†

* Average cost of coverage is .08%-1.75% of total declared value, depending on type of insurance and deductible.

† Less the deductible, which varies depending on insurance option selected.

What about homeowner's insurance?

It is important to know exactly what your policy already covers. Homeowner's insurance policies are typically limited when it comes to insuring your belongings while they are outside of your control. Check with your provider to be certain.

The Moving Insurance program allows customers to choose from three types of insurance policies to protect their goods while in the relocation process: All Risk, Named Perils, and Total Loss.

Each policy covers goods transported locally, out of state or overseas and can include coverage for storage in transit (SIT), if required.

The entire process of receiving a quote, purchasing insurance and initiating a claim (if needed) is done online, 24/7.

The Storage Insurance program provides coverage for goods stored in a self storage facility in case of catastrophe caused by any of the listed perils in our Named Perils policy.

Customers can buy insurance directly from us via our website or as part of the Pay With Rent program managed by the self storage facility.

Our insurance policy covers household and commercial goods and can be extended monthly to accommodate the customer's needs.

The logistics or freight insurance program is designed to insure personal or commercial goods that do not fall under the 'Household Goods' category.

An online 'Request For Quote' form collects all relevant information needed to insure the specific shipment.

Since the shipping of freight is very complex and involved, the insurance underwriting process is done offline.
